McKay's first mill destroyed to Ashes and a large quantity of Flour and Grain Destroyed.

About 4 a.m. last Sunday morning fire broke out in the engine house at McKay's grist mill, which quickly spread and totally destroyed the entire building. It was first discovered by the son of the engineer, who saw the flames, and all hands resident at the mill turned out to Canada their aid. The fire was fought with for half an hour in the engine house, but owing to the want of fire appliances and insufficient help, it quickly spread to the main building, which soon was ablaze. Attention was then directed to the saving of the books, grain and flour, which the mill contained, but only a small quantity could be got out. By the most painstaking efforts the saw mill was saved. By this time the mill was a huge bonfire, and all that could be done by those present, was to look to the protection of the adjoining buildings. About 2,000 bushels of grain, 200 bags of xxx and xxx flour and 12 tons of bran were consumed. The mill, which belonged entirely to Mr. McKay, was not insured.

The building was two-story frame one, 30x50 feet. The loss is estimated at $20,000. The loss to the community will be very great, as we are now left without a grist mill in the large and populous district. The following had grain and flour in the building: H. B. Co., Win. Platt, Lovell, W. Carter, H. Read, J. M. Campbell (part saved), R. Pritchard, J. McFarlane, Stewart & Wootton (saved), Capt. Marton, G. Gleason (part saved), M. McDonald, G. Taylor, D. McPhail, W. Brown, J. Attrick and W. Miller.

A meeting which had been called by protest was held on Monday in Treston Hall to consider the means to be taken towards erecting a grist mill. Mr. J. MacArthur was called to the chair, and Mr. R. C. Elliot acted as secretary to the meeting. The chairman said, in opening, that all must feel the great loss the district has sustained through the calamity that had befallen the only mill that was left to the community. The sympathy, he felt sure, of all present was extended to Mr. McKay, and they had met for the purpose of deciding what could be done in the way of assisting some person to erect a mill, with as little delay as possible.

Mr. W. Stewart said it was in the interest of all here that a mill should be built at once. Mr. McKay had lost a $20,000 mill, and he thought the people ought to assist him in re-building it, as they must have a mill in the west end of the town.

Mr. Agnew thought we not only should have a mill erected at once, but that it should be a good one, capable of turning out a superior quality of flour.

Mr. Stewart thought Mr. McKay was anxious to have a first-class mill, and deemed him the best judge in the matter.

Mr. Davis was entirely in accord with former speakers.

Mr. Mackenzie felt sorry for the loss Mr. McKay had sustained, and that if the town had been incorporated, no house, or begging would have been required to put up another mill. He thought the mill ought to be a first-class one, and that the machinery in town might be utilized for that purpose; he thought the factory of Messrs. Goodfellow Bros. might be turned into a grist mill, but he was willing to do all in his power to aid the meeting in any resolution they came to.

Mr. Wootton said it would be better to have an average mill than wait for the necessary machinery for a first-class one. Mr. McKay, who had lost every dollar amongst them, was an experienced man, and they should not now desert him; that by helping him they helped themselves; if they had no mill, and that was, practically closed their doors.

them. If they resolved to help him they must come forward liberally, and those who could not give money might give grain or freight machinery.

Mr. Treston was in favor of having the mill under the Mission and of assisting the Goodfellow Bros. to turn their factory into a grist mill.

Mr. W. Campbell thought the mechanics might give bonus in the shape of work.

Mr. Fish suggested that the farmers might help in freight.

Mr. Win. Stewart moved that a committee of nine be appointed to collect bonuses to give to Mr. McKay to enable him to erect a new mill, which on being carried the following gentlemen were selected—Messrs. W. Stewart, S. C. Elliot, T. Agnew, R. MacArthur, F. Baker, W. Campbell, T. Baker, Wm. J. Carter and J. F. Kennedy.

A subscription list was then opened, and after the usual thanks to the chair, the meeting terminated.

The committee have been actively canvassing for bonuses, but with such success we have not heard as yet.

Mr. McKay sent two men down to the Parks of the River to inspect the machinery that has been laying there for some time, but found it unsuitable for the requirements of a mill here.

If there is anything that points out the great necessity for this town being incorporated, it is the disaster to the grist mill last Sunday morning. It is only as far back as the 18th of March, when the H. B. Co.'s mill was totally destroyed by fire, and now the remaining one has gone the same way. If the town was incorporated it would have a bridge and appliances for extinguishing fires, and as the fire at McKay's mill on Sunday morning, broke out in the engine house and was confined there by the few hands hastily got together, for half an hour before reaching the main building, it may be reasonably presumed that had there been a properly organized fire brigade the mill would not have been destroyed. This calamity is not only felt by the proprietor, but affects the whole district. Great sympathy is felt for Mr. McKay who after the burning of the H. B. Co.'s mill did not raise the price of flour, and was always obliging to all. No doubt there has been negligence, if not a cheese paring policy, in not having a watchman to guard against such conflagrations, but even when such caution is exercised fire is so secret, and a city is not safe without the means at hand to prevent fire from doing such great damage as it has here lately. Every year new buildings are being added to the town, making additional risk, and insurance companies must have extra premiums, when no precaution is taken against fire. Anyway it may be anyone's lot to be burned out of house and home, and we must look to the community, chosen by the inhabitants and to our number, Mr. Macdonald, to do all in their power to secure to us incorporation; when Prince Albert will only then be come as fast.

When we were boys we used to read of grateful Indians who rewarded the kindness of a white man by disclosing the existence of valuable mines of precious metals. I remember, a trapper of Prince Arthur's Landing, has been perhaps the first to realize this romantic fortune. He had many acts of kindness to an Indian, named Saggepp Nias, who in return shared him the location of valuable silver mines. He has already sold mining permits to the value of $500,000.

ST. ANNE'S CONVENT.

The Right Rev. Dr. Grandin, Bishop of St. Albert, arrived here by small boat from St. Albert on Saturday. His diocese is on his annual circuit, and will proceed to Cumberland, visiting all the Roman Catholic missions in that district, thence to Calgary, via Swift Current, before returning homewards, which he will be unable to do till late in the fall. His Lordship expressed himself as highly gratified at the excellent manner in which the Catholic mission is worked here. The pupils attending the convent were put through an examination in English, French, Latin, music, etc., in all of which the Bishop spoke very favorably of the rapid advancement they have made since his last visit. The school, which is presided over by Sister Collins, Mother Superior, who came to this country highly recommended, is shortly to have two additional teachers and a lay sister. On Monday the pupils presented the Bishop with the following handsomely illuminated address:

To His Lordship the Right Rev. Dr. Grandin, Bishop of St. Albert.

My Lord,

We cannot express our pleasure in seeing your Lordship, and we beg to thank you for the honor of your visit. Though few of us are personally acquainted with you, my Lord, we have often heard of the zealous devotedness with which you have labored in this country during so many years for the advancement of civilization, education and religion. We do not forget that it is to your Lordship we are indebted for the advantages we possess of having within our reach the means of acquiring the solidity and accomplishments of a superior education, and we will endeavor to prove our gratitude for the good you have procured us by being now industrious and devoted pupils, and later on useful members of society. Thus brightly that may give your Lordship the health and strength you require to continue your work of zeal in the nearest wish of

THE PUPILS OF ST. ANNE'S CONVENT, PRINCE ALBERT.

While on his late visit here, Lieut. Governor Dewdney, accompanied by D. H. Macdonald, M.N.W.C., visited St. Anne's convent, when the pupils presented His Honor with the following address:

To His Honor the Lieut. Governor—

We are happy to be allowed the privilege of addressing you these few words to thank you for the visit with which you honor us. We know the interest you take in the education of youth throughout the territories of the North West, of which you so worthily fill the office of Governor. We also thank you much for the encouragement with which you saw give to the visit to the convent, and we trust you are happy to be, and we trust your Honor will accept our sincere wishes for your welfare and happiness.

THE PUPILS OF ST. ANNE'S CONVENT, PRINCE ALBERT.

His Honor and Mr. Macdonald both expressed the pleasure their visit had afforded them, and of the useful purposes of the convent in founding a high class educational system in the territories, which they were glad to see as so well taken advantage of.

PROBATION EST.

It seems but a few days since we had to report the dismal tidings of the total destruction by fire of the Hudson's Bay Company's grist mill involving the loss of an enormous sum of money, and more or less affecting, indirectly at any rate, the pockets of the settlers generally. In another place will be found an account of the wreck by a similar agency of the only other grist mill in the Settlement. Sad as it was to see the destruction of the mill which went first, yet there were some considerations which tended so far to mitigate the force of the calamity, e.g. the fact that the loss fell upon a rich company and would presumably be much less felt, and the consideration that there yet remained Mr. T. McKay's mill to do the work absolutely essential to our prosperity, if not existence. If any man by strict integrity, by enterprise, by public spiritedness, and the possession of an unvarying kind, obliging and unassuming disposition, deserves a calamity the sincere sympathy of a community, Mr. T. McKay must assuredly have ours now. All that can be done now is to make the best of a bad job, and learn if possible from the past misfortunes, wisdom to guard against their recurrence in the future. Of course the owners of mills or factories, uninsured, where no municipal laws obtains, are not responsible to anyone for neglect of precaution against fire, but we hope that no mill will ever again be left in Prince Albert, without a night watchman; provided with all the necessary appliances to extinguish a fire in its incipient stage. We raise our voice once more in appeal to every rational inhabitant of our town to throw off the unconformably apathy which calmly leaves to chance the preservation or destruction of the whole place. We have exhausted all hypotheses in trying to account for the diabolical carelessness and indifference which are content to idly contemplate the result of a fire, certain to occur sooner or later at the Mission. Much might be instanced to condemn the supposition that our community is composed of fatalists, men who would view the destruction of their all with a philosophical smile, saying what will be will be. Acquaintance with our people distinctly forbids the theory that this reckless indifference can be resolved into excess of religious sentiment, and dependence for preservation upon Divine protection, as even more devout Christians than we on the whole can claim to be, believe that "God helps those who help themselves." What as it then that we are waiting for in the way of warning? One thing only is wanting in the lessons we have already had to make them more incisive—that is the loss of life. To what extent that might easily be sacrificed, were a fire to start in the Mission during a high wind at night, it is really terrible to contemplate. We may ask is there anything peculiarly favorable in our circumstances to justify the expectation of immunity from the fire fire? Just glance at the Mission with all the inflammable material lying about to connect fire with houses not actually joined. Cast your mind over the dangers of fire caused possibly by an incendiary or by the irresponsible movements of the ginger-hunter, or by sparks from prairie fires, only some of many possibly contingencies, and then say whether without awaiting the tardy consummation of incorporation, it is not the obvious duty of every rational man here to exert himself to secure protection against fire. The cost of a small engine or a fire escape, and in the absence of police, a reliable man to patrol the town at night, divided amongst those interested, would be as nothing to what must sooner or later fall upon them, if things are allowed to go on as they are at present.

THE DYNAMITERS.

John Daley, alias Denman, James Francis Egan and Wm. McDonnell, were committed for trial in England, charged with treason, felony, and as a protest, an awakener, or starter as the Irishmen have it, they have been blowing up public buildings in the city of London. How this miserable blackguardism is supposed to be productive of any good to Ireland or its inhabitants, only a crank can imagine. Its effect on the English people will make them turn the Irish out, bag and baggage. It is said that Englishmen fail to comprehend Irishmen, because they are enemies, but Irishmen do not allow any one to comprehend them. They are jealous and suspicious, hating England, who they do not give any credit to of having done them any good. They look too much back on the past, are always utopians in idea, are humorous, gloomy and reckless; never losing sight of interests. They are a people who have no care for beauty or grace of surroundings, and will live in mire rather than take trouble on behalf of external refinement, yet who exhibit in their lives, their literature and their fancies, an inborn susceptibility to grace and fancy. There are capitalists at the present time who will not employ an Irishman, on any grounds whatever, and the English people, as a protection to themselves, will unite and force them out of the country. Thus the good must suffer for the bad, for it cannot be denied that a true Irishman is as loyal and peaceable a citizen as there is to be found. That the law will get its clutches on these perpetrators, spillers of innocent blood, is the wish of Europe and the whole civilized world, and it is to be sincerely hoped the punishment will be of the severest kind.

ENGLISH SNOBBERY.

The Hon. P. C. Hill in an article says:—"The slavish bondage to 'Society,' which reigns in England cannot fail to strike the mind of a colonist very forcibly. It not infrequently assumes a ludicrous aspect. In one small town I had the assurance of one of the residents that, there where about fifty distinct gradations of rank, each about half an inch higher than the other, but that these infinitesimal differences were sacred in the eyes of the inhabitants. It is this preposterous estimate of the value of their own half an inch on the scale that produces so many of the class of 'leaguers.' They will not dig, but they are not ashamed to beg; anything, death itself, would in their estimation, be preferable to descending half an inch on the social scale, even though the descent might land them in comparative affluence."

The works at sea make a total of 648 for the present year, against 534 in the corresponding period of 1882.

The members of the Council of the N. W. T. are summoned to meet in legislative session, on Thursday the 3rd of July next, in the Council Chamber, at Regina, at the hour of three o'clock p. m.

Mr. J. M. Clark, brother of Mr. A. H. Clark of this town, was awarded the first scholarship at the First Intermediate examination of the Law School of Osgoode Hall, Toronto, as well as the first prize in connection with the junior class.

The Lieut. Governor has made the following appointments:—Gen. Neale, Esq., North Branch; Joseph Nolin, Esq., Carlton; and W. F. Meyers, Esq., Carleton Place; to be Justices of Peace. Capt. Wm. Denny Andrews and N. Marigold, Esq., Battleford, to be Notaries Public.

The N. W. Transportation Company's steamer North West, under the command of Capt. Shantz, arrived here from Cumberland on Wednesday evening with goods for the H. B. Co. Capt. Davis, commander of the fleet, was aboard. She left for Carlton yesterday morning and arrived back this morning.

Mr. Porter of this place was married to Miss Macpherson of Morley, on Wednesday evening last, at St. Mary's Church. They were the recipients of many handsome presents from their friends. The wedding cake, which was of artistic design, was made by Mr. W. R. Bell, confectioner, Prince Albert.

A correspondent wishes to know if there are more than one religious denomination that believes in feet washing. It is sincerely to be hoped that there is. In answer to the same; a camel will work for seven or eight days without drinking. We know men, however, who will drink for seven or eight days without working.

The P. A. Lacrosse Club challenge the club at Edmonton to meet them at Battleford on July 1st, to play for the championship of the North West. The secretary replied by letter that the Edmonton Club could not go to Battleford, but would attempt to raise funds to pay the expenses of the P. A. club to Edmonton, when they would be happy to play a match with them.

On Wednesday evening last, Mr. C. Burns, an employee of the H. B. Co., on his way to inform the Hon. L. Clarke of the arrival of the steamer North West, met with a painful accident. The mule on which he was riding lost its footing near Timmins office, falling heavily on Mr. Burns and fracturing one of his legs. Dr. Bain was at once summoned to attend the sufferer, and reports that one of the small bones near the ankle is fractured.

The Presbyterian Record says the C. P. R. is proving a help to the mission. Fort MacLeod and Battleford are receiving a minister; Brandon is reported as doing well; the Rev. J. M. Douglas, having "unearthed" 120 Presbyterian families. The policy of sending up elders during winter is said to be a miserable failure, for only a few succeeded, some being sent who had never preached a sermon before, and others were extremely unsmooth, which must have been a terrible trial to the poor listeners. With regard to Prince Albert it states that the congregation being in the locality of an Episcopal See and a so-called College, is petitioning the Assembly for the establishment of a high school for young people of both sexes. They want a share of the Mission property for that purpose. We suppose this will be a school of schools, a high school, and not a so-called college. Thus we see how charity and brotherly love is cultivated among men, striving to the same end, sharing of the same hope, who on the erection of this academy will cry aloud: "Lord, I thank Thee our high school is not as this so-called college."

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

Set to Prince Albert Measure.

How dear to my heart are the scenes of pre-emption,

When fond recollection recalls them to view;

The fling, the proving, the coolie so tempting,

And every loved spot that my pre-emption knew.

The wide spreading plain, and the "butter" that stood by it,

The creek and the hillside in sunshine and rain,

The "shanty" of my neighbor, the sod stable night,

And even the old shanty that stood on the plain.

The little old shanty, the sod-covered shanty,

The tar-papered shanty that stood on the plain.

The little old shanty I hailed as a treasure,

As over the furrows I wearily trod;

I found it at noon time an exquisite pleasure,

To rest in its shadows from turning the sod.

How eager I hastened to gain its rude cover,

When the shadows of evening fell thick on the plain;

Not a cozier nook could be found the world over,

Than the little old shanty that stood on the plain.

The little old shanty, the sod-covered shanty,

The tar-papered shanty that stood on the plain.

How sweet in that little old shanty to slumber,

While the fierce howling winds swept wild o'er the plain;

Of all the enjoyments Prince Albert can number,

There's none equals shacking on a pre-emption claim.

But now far removed from that loved situation,

And the friends whom I never may welcome again,

Fond memory reverts to my Prince Albert location,

And sighs for the shanty that stood on the claim.

The little old shanty, the sod-covered shanty,

The tar-papered shanty that stood on the claim.

DRESS AND FASHION.

BY PUCK.

Pompador, greuze and wateau designs, are to be the rage this summer, and these printed cotton fabrics of a nice small pattern of fashionable colors are not excelled in loveliness by the shot silks and supple lousines. Some of the prettiest summer toilets will be made with skirts of shot silk and paniers and puffs of printed muslin with floral patterns, or tiny little red, blue or lilac figures on a beige or chambray leather-colored ground.

All kinds of patterns are fashionable for tea gowns made of embroidered crepe de chine with the draperies of Japanese crapes; grey on ivory white, yellow on lilac, pale blue on cream, etc. The negligee skirt is still in favor; that with the panels open in front to show the trimmed skirt; when open half way down the skirt, with single or double rows of dark velvet on light colored fabric, they are elegant and effective. Other dresses are made with a number of scalloped flounces, the edge of the crage, and the sleeves being also scalloped to match. Light colored washingstoffe are made in this way, and when the flounces are trimmed with lace it gives them a fine soft look.

Peleries of every kind are to be fashionable, but are only becoming on young and slender shoulders. They are mostly made of embossed velvet and trimmed with chenille fringe. For a stout lady the small mantlet, with rounded ends gathered in at the waist, or square ends falling on the front of the dress, is effective. These pretty mantillas are edged with lace and jet, the trimming reaching a little below the waist, or else they are ornamented with jet only, in pendants. Some of the new parasols are eccentric but will doubtless be adopted because they are so. They are made of silk with large designs of flowers, and have handles in the shape of a tambourine, one side of which tell it not in faith; forms the end of a small powder box, fitted with tiny puff and mirror; others represent large salons and chaggers in enamel or carved ivory on a very slender stick.

PUBLIC MEETING.

A meeting was held last night in the Mission School House, to decide as to the permanent location of the telegraph office. Mr. Peter Atkins was called to the chair, and Mr. M. Elias appointed secretary. The sittings opened by explaining the object of the meeting, and called upon the secretary, who read several letters relating to the location of the telegraph office, and the disturbances which had occurred about the same some time ago, also a letter from the Hon. L. Clarke to the chairman of the telegraph pole committee.

Thomas McKay, Esq., Chairman, T. P. Committee, Prince Albert.

DEAN SIB.—The time has now come when the temporary arrangements with regard to telegraph offices at Prince Albert must cease, and the permanent office established by the Government, and be located in the interests of the whole place. Messrs. Moore & Macdowell, McPhail and myself, who have subscribed a large amount for the construction of the line, feel that it is right and proper that the office should be established in the centre of both ends of the town, and will variably agree to its being located on Mr. John McDonald's property, this gentleman having offered two front lots as a site for the office and the loan of a building until the Government have erected their own establishment. We trust that the other subscribers to this fund will agree to this proposition and that a mutual understanding will be arrived at, that what tends to the prosperity of Prince Albert must benefit all having a stake in the place, and that all will in future work together heart and soul for the general welfare of the place. Very truly yours, L. CLARKE.

The chair having invited discussion, Mr. Mackenzie said, the telegraph business was no new thing with him, and believed the committee had not done their duty. They had entered into an agreement with the Government, to supply poles, and Mr. Gibson had assured them the service was most willing to accommodate the public and would erect the office if they purchased a lot for that purpose. They had subscribed, and secured a lot on River Lot 77, on most favorable terms from Messrs. Hard & Baker and Mr. Gibson had now broken faith with them. We were now made aware that the two offices were to be removed and a permanent one was to be substituted on the McDonald property. He did not know if there was any one present who had communications with the Government on the subject. Mr. Clarke, however, apparently had. It was for him to take a stand, and follow out the people's wishes and place before the Minister of Public Works the exact state of affairs. They should adhere to their original agreement and remind the Government of their promises, if they would not put it there then let them put it where they liked. There was a lot awaiting them showing the people were prepared to fill their part of the contract, and was sure if the matter was put in the right way, the Government would do theirs. Mr. J. O. Davis, as one of the pole committee, after repeated calls, said he had nothing to say except that Mr. Betts had informed him of the receipt of a letter from Mr. Clarke, and that Mr. Betts was in favor of a compromise, which he would not agree to. Mr. O'Leary believed that the West End office was to be shut up, and that if any should be open it was that one, being more central and near the post office. Mr. J. Stewart did not believe the telegram read to the meeting had been forwarded by pole committee, (upon which Mr. Gwynne rose and informed him it had, costing $10). He thought the question was not whether it should be in the east or west, but that they should stand by their original agreement, to have it in the centre of the town. Some thought the subscribers should say where it ought to be, but did they erect the line to Ottawa, it was the public money, therefore the public had a right to have it where it was most required. Mr. MacInnes said Parliament in its session of 1882-83 gave a grant of $7,000 for a telegraph line from Clarke's crossing to Prince Albert, poles being furnished by the people. The opening of the two offices was understood to be only a temporary arrangement, terminating on the 30th inst. He believed that was how Mr. Clark had written the letter read. The people in his opinion ought to show the exact position of affairs, and he had no doubt the Government would comply with their wishes. Mr. Gunn, after reviewing the question, moved that a committee of five be appointed to draft a memorial, to be forwarded to the Government, stating all that had been done in the past, the population of the several divisions of the town, and have it circulated among the people for signature, which on being attested by Mr. O'Leary, was carried. Messrs. J. Stewart, G. Nelson, G. Brown, J. C. Mackenzie and W. R. Gunn were then elected as the committee. Mr. Wootton had heard that Mr. Gibson, General Superintendent, was on his way here and had power to locate the office, and it was decided that if he came the committee would wait on him. The usual vote of thanks to the chair brought the meeting to a close.

THE DEAD BABY.

The baby is dead, but its mother's Sweeteyes with a radiance shine As she says in a whisper, "No fingers Shall touch it or dress it but mine."

Oh let me do this for my baby, To me 'tis a labor of love, I'll dress it in white like the angels That wait for my darling above.

Oh pity me not for my bosom Is thrilled with a wondrous delight For a beautiful angel in heaven Is calling me "mother" to-night.

To think that my baby is walking The path that its Saviour has trod, To-night he is welcoming baby, For of such is the Kingdom of God.

A largely attended meeting for the purpose of organizing a lawn tennis club in Prince Albert was held in Messrs. McLean & Elliot's office on Saturday, the 7th inst., when the following business was transacted. It was decided to call the club the Prince Albert Lawn Tennis Club, after which the following officers were elected: President, Hon. L. Clarke; Vice President, Thomas Swanson, Esq.; Treasurer, J. H. Knowles; Committee of Management, Col. Sprout, Messrs. T. McKay, T. N. Campbell, S. C. Elliot and G. D. Northcaves. It was also decided to rent the Prince Albert Curling and Skating Rink Co.'s property from 20th June. The committee were entrusted to draft a constitution and by-laws. The committee have purchased from Mr. E. White his lawn tennis set, and the club intend to commence playing immediately.
